

TruVista Purchases Georgia Cable Systems from Northland Cable Properties

April 27, 2012 (Toccoa, Georgia) – A major change in telecommunications comes to Northeast Georgia as TruVista completed its acquisition of the cable systems serving Toccoa and Clayton Georgia from Northland Communications. The transition is expected to take place over the next few months and will bring with it new and upgraded communications services to area residents and businesses.

“We are excited about the opportunity to serve our new customers and to become part of the Northeast Georgia communities of Toccoa, Royston, Canon, Clayton, Lake Rabun and Sky Valley,” said Brian Singleton, TruVista President and CEO. “These systems are a nice fit for TruVista as we have operated in communities similar to these since our inception. We look forward to offering the latest technologies and quality services that our existing customers have come to expect from TruVista.”

TruVista will begin implementing plans to upgrade services in the area to include higher Internet speeds, expanded television services, enhanced local and long-distance phone services and the introduction of security services, including security system monitoring. TruVista also plans to offer customers bundled service packages with discounted pricing and the added convenience of paying for all communications services under one bill.

In addition to significant capital investment, TruVista is committed to making a positive contribution as a corporate citizen. “We believe that the future of any community relies on partnerships and local relationships,” Singleton said. “That’s why you’ll see the same friendly faces behind the counter, in addition to new ones, supporting your community”.
